ABOUT IN SANTA FE

THE LOVE CHIP

Eros, the God of love in all its manifestations from soulful to sportive, was born of Chaos. This explains why physicist Jim Crutchfield of the Santa Fe Institute is one of the workshop leaders of Techne and Eros, a series of experimental media-arts workshops sponsored by the Summer Media Institute of the Santa Fe Arts Institute. That's a lot of institutes. This Saturday a live performance and demonstration will inaugurate the series, focused on "Human-to-Machine Communication, Music and Art Performance." Joan La Barbara and Steina Vasulka will perform and you'll get a chance to meet with workshop leaders Crutchfield, La Barbara, Mort Subotnick, David Dunn and Woody and Steina Vasulka. There will be six separate one-week workshops in which enrollment will be limited to 10 participants for each. It's hoped participants will already have done some work in these interactive, interrelated areas. If this is how you want to spend a good part of your summer, it's possible to enroll for the entire program under the supervision of your chosen visiting artist. (Dennis Jarrett)
