The Art of Composing Music with Video

From Paik's first video discovery (and therefore of "video art") to works by masters of the image-sound-music relationship in electronic arts: video as the visible language of music, with a homage to Piet Mondrian and the relationship between painting, computer art, color and sound, created in the Nineties by a young Polish artist.

The Discover of the Medium and Its Language

The exploration of the expressive possibilities of the electronic medium, its languages, its links and possible narrations with other art and communication forms (films, music, photography, plastic and other arts) in the now historical debut videos of four important authors. The trans-cultural and intermedia "overture" of electronic arts between the Far East, Europe and America.
